

CMS Regulatory Training: Training and Compliance Attestations

THE CHALLENGE

Regulations within the health care industry are continuously changing in response to reforms and administrative updates. As regulations change, payers need to be able to clearly communicate the changes to their network providers and ensure that the staff and physicians are being trained using up-to-date content.

Payers need to be able to clearly communicate regulatory changes to their network providers and ensure that the staff and physicians are being trained using up-to-date content

The consequences of compliance failures and errors include exposure of individuals or entities to potential criminal and civil liability, as well as imprisonment, fines, and penalties. Criminal and civil penalties reflect the serious harms associated with health care fraud and the need for aggressive and appropriate intervention. Non-compliance also places providers and health care organizations at risk of exclusion from participating in all Federal health care programs and possibly losing their professional licenses.

Enforcement and contract actions include:

- Civil money penalties (CMP)
- Intermediate sanctions (i.e., suspension of marketing, enrollment, payment)
- Terminations.
